Drilling South: Petrobras Evaluates Pecom

Drilling for oil in a refuge is dangerous and wrong especially because there are so many other places to get oil from.
Drilling in the ANWR: Good or Bad?

Drilling in ANWR
(2,000 Acres out of 19 million)
See The Point?

Citation of Pictures
[Links to images and sources related to drilling in the ANWR]
Families

Although there are only two known families living on the refuge, the effect on them will almost be as bad as the animals.

- Since most of the animals will be dead when the oil is drilled for, the families will have nothing to eat. They also won’t have any fur for warmth.
Wildlife

Animals (bears, caribou, rabbits, etc) that live in the ANWR will also be affected.

- First off, those animals have built their life in the ANWR but when people come to drill for oil those animals will either die, or be forced to move somewhere else.