Ms. MacConville was familiar with the background information on the greeting card industry and on Friendly Cards. Ms. Beaumont had also referred three other questions to Ms. MacConville:

1.- Should Friendly invest in equipment to enable the company to make rather than to buy its envelopes?

2.- Should Friendly Cards acquire Creative Designs, Inc., a small midwestern manufacturer of studio cards?

3.- Should Friendly go to the market to raise additional equity capital in order to relieve the pressure on its financial position?

La posible venta de nuevas acciones ordinarias

Para sostener el crecimiento rápido proyectado para los próximos años, y a la luz del escasísimo margen de maniobra que ofrecía la situación financiera de Friendly, Beaumont era consciente de que quizá tendría que conseguir capital propio adicional

Possible Sale of New Common Stock

In order to sustain the projected rapid growth for the next several years in view of Friendly's extremely tight financial position. Ms Beaumont was aware that she might have to raise additional equity capital.

In my opinión:

The acquisition of creative designs inc. is not a good decision, because frequently has good sales, acquire another company increases its debt with financial institutions.

En mi opinión:

La adquisición de creative designs inc. no es una buena decisión, porque Frecuenty tiene buenas ventas, adquirir otra compañía aumenta su deuda con las entidades financieras.
