Character

Thecasesolutions.com

To have a good character, you need to show the characteristics of integrity, honesty, courage, loyalty, fortitude, and you need to be a good example for the people who look up to you. You are someone who influences other people, so you need to have good character.

Example

Someone with a purpose does things for others without the expectation of personal gain, or getting something in return.

You help out in a grade 1 class – you need to show the good characteristics such as honesty and loyalty, so that the children who look up to you for help and guidance will then be influenced to take on those traits, rather than bad ones.

Purpose

Enthusiasm

Thecasesolutions.com

To be a good leader, you need to be enthusiastic about your work/task. Being enthusiastic not only benefits you, but also the people around you or working with you. It can inspire and motivate people, and people will generally feel more comfortable around people of dedication.

Example

Confidence

Thecasesolutions.com

People will trust a confident leader over an unconfident leader. A leader who is confident is a leader who knows what they are doing, so people will feel more comfortable following them. It will cause people to feel more confident too, making them put in more effort.
