

Using Social Media to Report Financial Results

TheCaseSolutions.com

Using Social Media to Report Financial Results

TheCaseSolutions.com

Introduction

In order for excluded businesses to decide if they want to partake in the Facebook community, or any social media site, they must:

- Find your business's target audience

- Know what kind of content to post, and how to post the content, in order to capture and keep the target audience's attention.

- Look at how popular social media websites are with your business's target audience.

- Which social media site is the most popular?

- Understand exactly how and why Facebook, or any other social media website, helps promote businesses, and increase their profits.

TheCaseSolutions.com

Survey's to Audience

Often

Sometimes

Seldom

Never

TheCaseSolutions.com

In order to properly examine and research how business profits can increase through social media, we created individual surveys which were sent out to students currently enrolled in college (generation Y).

"Three-quarters of online adults in the U.S. now use social media sites, according to the Pew Internet Project. If we're talking about millenials and young people - i.e. tomorrow's consumers - that number gets dramatically higher" - Ryan Holmes

Target Audience

It's important to find out who your target audience is

- Where they hang out
- What pages they belong to

Engage in a conversation with them

Try and solve their issues, instead of giving them a sales pitch.

TheCaseSolutions.com

Content

What Content to Post?

In the beginning, all content, at least 90% should be informational, not promotional.

After a while, you can lessen that to the 80/20 rule:

- 80% Informational
- 20% Promotional

TheCaseSolutions.com

How to Post?

As a business, you should be posting daily.

Informational posts should answer questions such as:

- How to?
- How not to?
- What to avoid?
- How to find the best?
- What makes it the best?
- How to fix it?
- Repair it and what must you know?

TheCaseSolutions.com

TheCaseSolutions.com

What Content to Post?

In the beginning, all content, at least 90% should be informational, not promotional.

After a while, you can lessen that to the 80/20 rule:

- 80% Informational
- 20% Promotional

How to Post?

As a business, you should be posting daily.

Informational posts should answer questions such as:

- How to?
- How not to?
- What to avoid?
- How to find the best?
- What makes it the best?
- How to fix it?
- Repair it and what must you know?

TheCaseSolutions.com

Which Social Media Platform is Best for your Business?

"Facebook is right for you... if you are building a community presence or want to reach as broad a network as possible."

"Twitter is right for you... if you want to reach both men and women, especially younger ones. It is also particularly appealing to 'information junkies' so if your business lends itself to the provision of topic-based news or timely insights, Twitter is a great choice."

"LinkedIn is right for you... if you are in B2B or in another industry or role in which you can provide useful insights to people thinking about their work, seeking to make business connections, or looking for their next job."

TheCaseSolutions.com

-Manafy