

Lisa Benton

Lisa Benton Case

Lisa Benton got a lot of news because she got hired to be a manager. At the very beginning, she felt like looking at organizational charts and seeing how everybody else was going to see her. There is something you could do if you're in this case, and it's about taking the things that someone is used to doing and making the headlines of it.

Also, Lisa felt that she needed to be a manager. She was giving her some tasks to do and she felt that she was not working together with others as a team and that everybody is not working.

TheCaseSolutions.com

Lisa Benton

Lisa Benton Case

Lisa Benton got in to that mess because, as she got hired at Newsweek as the assistant product manager, in the very beginning, she felt like having no responsibilities at work. Hence constantly she was trying to ask her boss if there is something she could do at the end of the day she ended up doing the things that secretaries should do, understanding the findings of her clients, etc.

Also, Lisa felt like Neville treated her as a servant girl, as he was giving her some tasks to do while she waited for the bus. But she had to work with others, as it meant work since everybody is overworked.

TheCaseSolutions.com

Lisa Benton Case

Lisa Benton got in to that mess because as she got hired at houseworld as the assistant product manager, in the very beginning she felt like having no responsibilities at work hence constantly she was trying to ask her boss if there is something she could do at the end of the day she ended up doing the things that secretaries should do, like correcting the headings of her chats in ms word.

Lisa Benton

Lisa Benton Case

Lisa Benton got in to that mess because, as she got hired at Newsweek as the assistant product manager, in the very beginning, she felt like having no responsibilities at work. Hence constantly she was trying to ask her boss if there is something she could do at the end of the day she ended up doing the things that secretaries should do, understanding the findings of her clients, etc.

Also, Lisa felt like Neville treated her as a servant girl, as he was giving her some tasks to do while she waited for the bus. But she had to work with others, as it meant work since everybody is overworked.

TheCaseSolutions.com