

Leading Gardens.com

TheCaseSolutions.com

Case Study Introduction

- What is the history of Verizon?
- Who is Verizon?
- Adaptive Challenges & Process
- What if Verizon wasn't an "Adaptive Company?"
- Summary

TheCaseSolutions.com

Verizon's History

TheCaseSolutions.com

Regulatory issues of traditional telecom cast a long shadow on wireline

TheCaseSolutions.com

"One Verizon" culture creation was an uphill battle between old school regulations & entrepreneurial spirit.

Leadership

Adaptive Challenge

TheCaseSolutions.com

- What worked in the past was not going to work going forward.
- Different factions wanted different outcomes.

TheCaseSolutions.com

Changing a Culture

Challenge to traditional Wireline culture

- Speeding up development cycles
- Emphasis on bottom-line over fixed and regulated income
- iPhone - "world was going to change" (on the balcony)

Changing a Culture

Integrating Enterprise & Restructuring Design

- Empowered teams to organize - "come back in a week with your ideas"

TheCaseSolutions.com

- *Made tough personnel decisions -
 - likely some of these were due to negative reactions & dysfunctional team dynamics*
- Realization that barriers to wireline/wireless collaboration often imaginary - must have successfully communicated the new vision
- Identified priorities/principles; talked through compromises - probably orchestrated conflict as they integrated design teams

Changing the Culture

Vertical Integration of Enterprise Wireless

Simplification of product development;
removal of bureaucracy

TheCaseSolutions.com

Letting go of old structures - VPs with successful territories not interested in change causing "Bloodbath" and four month shift

New solutions arose as reorganization took hold