- Traditional Navajo weaving looms were upright with no moving parts.
- The artist sits on the floor during weaving and wraps the finished portion of fabric under the loom as it grows.

Navajo Weaving

- Navajo rugs and blankets are textiles produced by Navajo people on the Four Corners of the United States
- Navajo textiles are highly regarded and have been sought after as trade items for over 150 years.
- Commercial production of handwoven items has been an important part of Navajo economy.

Weaving plays a role in Navajo mythology. According to some aspects of the tradition a spirit has been called "Spider Woman" instructed the women of the tribe in building the first loom from local materials including sky, earth, sun, moon, and stars.
