

FACEBOOK COVERS
FANTASYCOVERS.COM

What does beauty mean to you?
Beauty in appearance means very little to me. In expressing yourself, sure. But in acting like your someone else because you hate your own appearance is different. I feel like everyone has their own kind of beauty either in or out.

What does being beautiful to you mean?
Being beautiful should be beyond looks because it's like you are really inner that you spiritual appearance. Some people think you want to be like someone else because you are trying to look like someone else. It's all about being a look and being able to connect with that person and help you get on a good road to discovering your beauty.

What makes a beautiful person? What makes someone beautiful?
In my eyes, a beautiful person is someone who treats others right and doesn't care what other people think about their looks. There are kinds of people I usually don't be friends with because they have words or do things.

What extremes are people willing to take to make themselves beautiful? What extremes is someone willing to take to make something beautiful?
An extreme someone is willing to take is when someone does plastic surgery. I think of that as an extreme because if you make the decision and change your physical appearance then you may never get it back to it's original form. An extreme people will go through to make something beautiful is made if you're a plastic surgeon then you are going through an extreme. In this case surgery which can be very nasty, then you are changing a person's physical appearance which could be permanent. Missing up would be terrible.

What are some wrong definitions and why do you disagree?
Some wrong definitions of beauty are when people, occasionally women, believe that they aren't beautiful and that they begin to wear too much make-up or dress exactly like everyone else. It's better to differentiate sometimes and express yourself through how you act, dress, and appear to society.

How is beauty represented in your society? How is it defined?
People of America usually define beauty by your physical appearance. One of the better ways to define beauty is through not only their physical appearance but also their inner appearance.

To Conclude.....
To conclude beauty, I think instead of looking on the outside, next time look on the inside. You may see the most beautiful person in the world even if you think that their physical appearance is dislikeable. Don't forget to search hard even if may take awhile!

The Beauty of Sorbet

By: Michaela Kingsley

TheCasesolutions.com

The Beauty of Sorbet

By: Michaela Kingsley

TheCasesolutions.com

What are some wrong definitions and why do you disagree?
 Some wrong definitions of beauty are when people, occasionally women, believe that they aren't beautiful and they begin to wear too much make-up or dress exactly like everyone else. It's better to differentiate sometimes and express yourself through how you act, dress, and appear to society.

What does beauty mean to you?
 Beauty in appearance means very little to me. In expressing yourself, sure. But in acting like your someone else because you hate your own appearance is different. I feel like everyone has their own kind of beauty either in or out.

What extremes are people willing to take to make themselves beautiful? What extremes is someone willing to take to make something beautiful?
 An extreme someone is willing to take is when some does plastic surgery. I think of this as an extreme because if you make this decision and change your physical appearance then you may never get it back to it's original form. An extreme people will go through to make something beautiful is make-up if you're a plastic surgeon then you are going through an extreme. In this case surgery which can be very nasty, then you are changing a person's physical appearance which could be permanent. Messing up would be horrific.

How is beauty represented in your society? How is it defined?
 People of America usually define beauty by your physical appearance. One of the better ways to define beauty is through not only their physical appearance but also their inner appearance.

What makes a beautiful person? What makes a beautiful smile?
 In my eyes, a beautiful person is someone who treats others right and doesn't care what other people think about their looks. This is because people usually can't be brought down by how messy or dirty looks.

Why should being beautiful go beyond looks?
 Being beautiful should go beyond your appearance. It's not just your looks that you should be proud of. It's your personality, your sense of humor, your ability to make someone else feel good, and how you act as a person that is what makes you beautiful.

To Conclude.....
 To conclude beauty, I think instead of looking on the outside, next time look on the inside. You may see the most beautiful person in the world even if you think that their physical appearance is dislikeable. Don't forget to search hard even if may take awhile!

How is beauty represented in your society? How is it defined?

People of America usually define beauty by your physical appearance. One of the better ways to define beauty is through not only their physical appearance but also their inner appearance.

weet

*What are some wrong definitions
and why do you disagree?*

Some wrong definitions of beauty are when people, occasionally women, believe that they aren't beautiful and they begin to wear too much make-up or dress exactly like everyone else. It's better to differentiate sometimes and express yourself through how you act, dress, and appear to society.

What does beauty mean to you?

Beauty in appearance means very little to me. In expressing yourself, sure. But in acting like your someone else because you hate your own appearance is different. I feel like everyone has their own kind of beauty either in or out.

