It is important to have certain phrases in Mandarin or Cantonese, as well as some Chinese history or customs, in order to succeed.

Small gifts to some relatives, friends and old employees, or to the government, and getting yourself back up when you have had a bad holiday isn't to get it so easy that they are.

Members of a group can speak the language of one from their own home as a courtesy, but it is important to be able to speak and understand the language of the other.

Business is very important, both before and after the meeting. Ask your Chinese contact a clear example that is not all about their own business when it comes to business.

Keep a record of who speaks in Chinese or English and to whom, at least in the first few weeks. It is important to know who is who and who is who in the first few weeks.
