

Reawakening the World's Most Famous Office Building: Economics behind a Groundbreaking Energy Efficiency Retrofit

Our Slogan
Strike Out for Freedom!

Thecasesolutions.com

Conclusion

- The British didn't complete their job as a mother country.
- In conclusion, colonies should declare independence for their advantage.

Evidence

Thecasesolutions.com

- No colonies shared the flag and emblem, and the union was half without them.
- The first reason why the colonies should fight for independence was because the British wanted to keep themselves rich, because of the trade and other programs that took away their rights.
- No colonies think that they should stay in a foreign relationship with the British.

Our Option

Thecasesolutions.com

Fight for Independence

More ...

Thecasesolutions.com

- Another reason why the British kept the colonies from trading and buying from other countries was that so they could make more money.
- The British would permit the colonies to export their goods and import goods from other countries. This was not good for the colonies as they were the ones to suffer from it. The British were not doing their right.

Fight for Our Independence

Thecasesolutions.com

Reawakening the World's Most Famous Office Building: Economics behind a Groundbreaking Energy Efficiency Retrofit

Conclusion

- The British didn't complete their job as a mother country.
- In conclusion, colonies should declare independence for their advantage.

Our Slogan
Strike Out for Freedom!
Thecasesolutions.com

Evidence
Thecasesolutions.com

- The colonies blamed the King and Parliament and the tension was built between them.
- The first reason why the colonies should fight for independence was because the British made colonial people unhappy that means with their oppression and took away their rights.
- The colonies think that they should only have a long relationship with the British.

Our Option
Thecasesolutions.com
Fight for Independence

More ...
Thecasesolutions.com

- Another reason was the British wouldn't let the colonies from trading and buying from other countries except them so they closed many ports.
- Parliament would force the colonies to expand their trade and export products without restriction. Finally the colonies will support the British as they see the chance to defend their right. No one can take away their rights.

Thecasesolutions.com

Our Option

Thecasesolutions.com

Fight for independence

GROUND

Our Slogan

Strike Out for Freedom!

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Thecasesolutions.com

Evidence

Thecasesolutions.com

- The colonies blamed the King and Parliament, and the tension was built between them.
- The first reason why the colonies should fight for independence was because the British murdered people, destroyed their houses, stole their properties and took away their rights.
- The colonies think that they should only have a foreign relationship with the British.

More ...

Thecasesolutions.com

- Another reason was the British forbidden the colonies from trading and buying from others countries except them so they closed many ports.
- Independent would permit the colonies to expand their trade and import products without restriction. French and Spanish will support the colonies as they see the chance to defeat their rival. No one can take away their rights.