E-Resources

Thecasesolutions.com

24 more steps associated with e-journals than with print.

Workflow is similar for e-books and databases and a bit more intensive for streaming media

Conclusion:

More staff and resources should be directed to electronic/digital resources.

"When we try to guess what patrons want, we're wrong nearly half the time."
- Rick Anderson, Associate Director of Scholarly Resources & Collections, University of Utah, 30th Annual Charleston Conference

Conclusion:

Fewer resources should be expended on "just-in-case" collecting.
