Day 2: The Visit to the Temple of Dawn TheCaseSolutions.com

On Day 2, families will go, by boat on the Chao Phraya River, to see the Wat Arun. The beauty of the architecture and the fine craftsmanship declare its status as one of the most outstanding temples in Thailand. Since it is on the bank of Chao Phraya River, it is one of Bangkok's world-famous landmarks. It has an imposing spire over 70 meters high. The spire is beautifully decorated with tiny pieces of colored glass placed delicately into wierd patterns. Although it is known as the Temple of the Dawn, it's very nice looking at sunset, particularly when lights up at night.

Day 3: Floating Markets

TheCaseSolutions.com

On Day 3, families will go, by boat again, to see and purchase things from the floating markets in downtown Bangkok. These boats are piled high with tropical fruit and vegetables, fresh, ready-to-drink coconut juice and local food cooked from floating kitchens located right on the boat. We will also finish viewing the waterways of the Chao Phraya River.
