What are the most disturbing emerging problems for global development, practical and / or theoretical?

THESIS

The overarching problem for global development is sustainable development. The plight to ensure sustainability is bringing into question every development effort made, hindering rather than progressing its application.

While sustainability is the key objective in 21st century global development, in order to maintain such efforts, states require some foundational infrastructure, namely being able to and willing to address matters of corruption, conflict and resources.
