

The snack food industry
The snack food industry is a highly competitive and fast-growing market. It is characterized by a high degree of brand loyalty and a strong emphasis on convenience and portability. The industry is dominated by a few large players, but there is a growing number of smaller, niche brands entering the market. The demand for snack foods is increasing, particularly among young adults and busy professionals. This is driven by factors such as the rise of on-the-go lifestyles, the popularity of social media, and the increasing availability of snack foods in a wide range of retail outlets. The industry is also facing challenges such as rising raw material costs and increasing regulatory requirements. However, the overall outlook for the snack food industry is positive, with significant growth expected in the coming years.

Product Development
Product development is a critical component of the snack food industry. It involves the process of creating new products or improving existing ones. This process typically starts with market research to identify consumer needs and preferences. It then moves through stages of concept development, prototyping, and testing. The final stage is commercialization, where the product is launched into the market. Product development is a complex and costly process, but it is essential for staying competitive in a rapidly changing market. Successful product development requires a deep understanding of the target market and a strong focus on innovation and quality.

Marketing Strategy
Marketing strategy is a key factor in the success of a snack food brand. It involves the development of a plan for reaching and persuading target consumers. This plan typically includes a mix of advertising, promotion, and sales. Advertising is used to create awareness and build brand equity. Promotion is used to encourage trial and repeat purchases. Sales are used to build relationships with retailers and distributors. A well-executed marketing strategy can help a brand stand out in a crowded market and drive long-term growth.

SWOT

Strengths

Weaknesses

Opportunities

Threats

Conclusion

References

Sammy Snacks (D)

Thecasesolutions.com

The snack food industry

Thecasesolutions.com

What are snacks:

Food consumed between regular meals for energy and taste.

Examples: potato chips, corn chips, tortilla chips, popped popcorn, salted nuts and seeds, chocolate and non chocolate candies, cookies and crackers, unpopped popcorn, meat snacks, etc. Also called junk food, little or no nutritional value.

Ingredients:

Readily available at home or meal leftovers. Contain sweeteners, preservatives.

People becoming health conscious. Prefer healthy foods like fruits, vegetables, etc.

So, snack companies required to go for aggressive promotions and advertisements.

Snack Food Industry, India

Thecasesolutions.com

- US$3 billion market. Growth: 15% per annum.
- Organized snack category constituted around 46%.
- Demand for processed foods saw a hike due to rising incomes,
- Success of any snack depended on its ability to adapt to local culinary and cultural food habits.
- Snack market dominated by small-sized packs.
- Characteristics of the market:
  - Highly innovative
  - Intense competition
  - Numerous brand launches every year
  - Mortality rate as high as 70%

Organized & Unorganized retailing

Organized retailing

- Licensed retailers
- Included corporate- backed hypermarkets, retail chains, privately owned large retail businesses
- Annual growth rate of 25 – 30%
- Expected revenues – US$15 billion
- Expected growth in market share from 10% to 35% over the next decade.
- Offered varied product selection, better ambience and shelf space for merchandising
- Snacks constituted less than 5% of food sales

Unorganized retailing

- 3 million stores i.e. small ‘father & son’ outlets
- Small businesses, average sized, approximately 50 sq. feet
- 2/3 of these stores in rural areas
- Low cost retailing, corner stores, owner-manned general stores, cigarette stalls, convenience stores and hand cart and payment vendors
- Accounted for almost all of the sales of the snack industry and 85% of total food and beverage industry.
- Target for almost all trade promotion on snack industry.

Thecasesolutions.com

Snacko Inc

- Snacko's growth strategy: product innovation, packaging, advertising, promotion, inorganic growth through M&As.
- Focused on retailers and not on consumers – building goodwill among merchants.
- Concentrated on market development
- Had an innovation centre in India to monitor local formats and tastes.
- Wanted to target different customer segments.
- Recently launched a new brand targeting teenagers which had yet remained untapped as most brands targeted adults and children.
- Snacko wanted to increase frequency of consumption in metro markets and also wanted to enter rural markets.

Thecasesolutions.com

Snacko's distribution channel

- Snacko products were often purchased on impulse, hence intensive distribution and point of sale visibility and promotions necessary.
- Multiple level vertical channel, covered organized as well as unorganized retail outlets .
- Had their own sales force, assisted by a Sales Officer(SO)
- Distributors received margin of 4-5%, received leads by Merchandising Officers(MO) from the company.
- Complete sales network depended on distributor-salesperson network. Dependence on wholesalers was minimum.
- Conflicts between distributors and retailers.

Thecasesolutions.com

Distribution Channel

Thecasesolutions.com

Distribution Channel (Contd..)

Thecasesolutions.com

- CFA
  - Intermediary between company's warehouse and domestic distributor
  - Supplies the product to the distributor and issues the invoice to distributor
  - Margins of about 2%
- Distributor
  - Appointed for smaller territory
  - Serves the market fully
  - Assisted by Sales Officer (SO) and Merchandising Officer (MO)
  - Employees Sales Representatives (SR) and Distributor's Merchandisers (DM)
  - Margins of 4-5%