

This diagram illustrates a process flow starting from a central point. The flow branches into multiple paths, each leading to a specific stage or output. The central node is the starting point, and the arrows indicate the direction of the process. The boxes represent different stages or components of the process, which are interconnected and build upon each other.

When a Pandemic Hits: Treading H2O and the Possible Pox (C)

TheCaseSolutions.com

The 1918 Spanish flu was the most devastating pandemics in human history. Infact the flu occured in nearly every inhabited part of the world.

h ans

("1918 Flu Pandemic")
TheCaseSolutions.com

The influenza occurred in three waves. The first wave was in April; it started off mild but by July it had spread from the U.S. to Poland. TheCaseSolutions.com

TI
T
W
A
C

("newsboys wearing masks")
TheCaseSolutions.com

TheCaseSolutions.com

The flu broke out during world war I. It was said that the American troops that arrived from Europe carrying the virus with them.

When a Pandemic Hits: Treading H2O and the Possible Pox (C)

TheCaseSolutions.com

TheCaseSolutions.com

("Early 1918")