

Bright Star Care The Evolution of a Leadership Team Harvard Case Solution & Analysis

"Bright star, would I were steadfast as thou art--Not in lone splendour hung aloft the night And watching, with eternal lids apart, Like nature's patient, sleepless Eremite, The moving waters at their priestlike task Of pure ablution round earth's human shores, Or gazing on the new soft-fallen mask Of snow upon the mountains and the moors--No--yet still stedfast, still unchangeable, Pillow'd upon my fair love's ripening breast, To feel for ever its soft fall and swell, Awake for ever in a sweet unrest, Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath, And so live ever--or else swoon to death. "

His biographers suggest different dates of when he first drafted Bright Star but it's said to be around 1819, and talking about his fiancee.

John Keats was a romantic poet, who didn't care for anything but his passion for love and literature.

After his first couple of publications, he fell in love with a fashionable girl who was strong, practical, and firm. The opposite of himself.
