

Case Studies: India & China

by: Cindy Hernandez, Perri Lennon,
and Mya White

Thecasesolution.com

Case Studies: India & China

by: Cindy Hernandez, Perri Lennon,
and Mya White

Thecasesolution.com

Population growth in India

India

27 million babies will be born this year in India. The country's population is growing by 18 million annually. Attitudes and behavior need to change because if not their population will reach 1.8 billion in 2050. Children are seen as an economic asset because they help perform chores on the farm and are expected to provide for their parents in old age. One out of every 18 infants die within 1 year of birth. In recent years India has made progress in modern farming practices. Majority of the money maid must be spent on food, housing, and other services to support the growing population. One third of the population is under the age of 15.

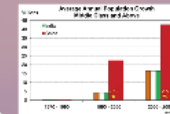

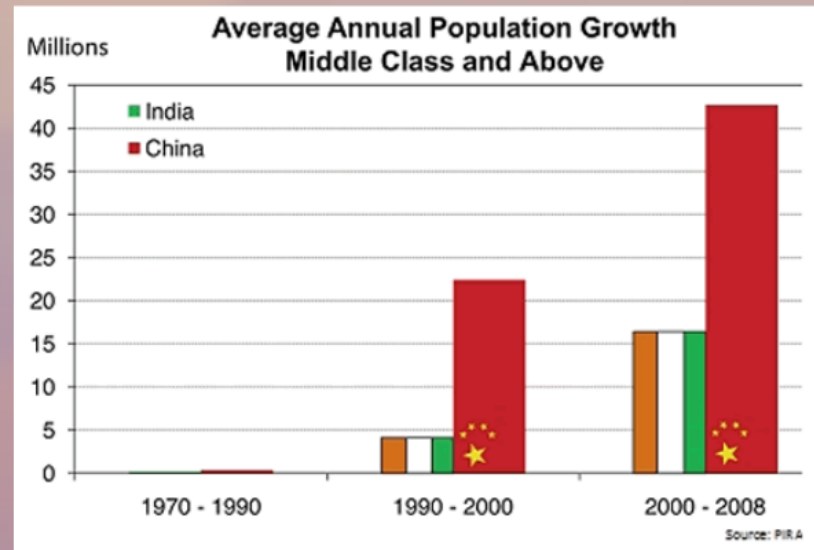

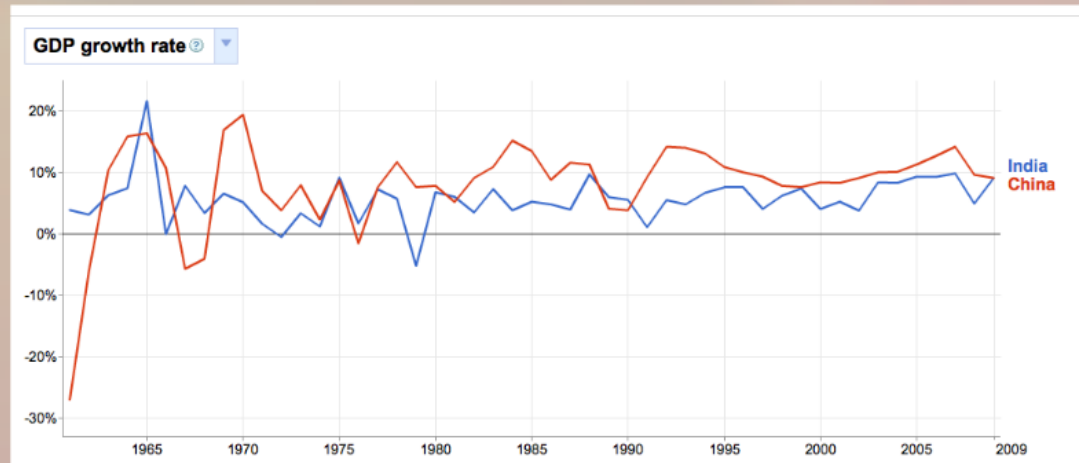

China Population

China

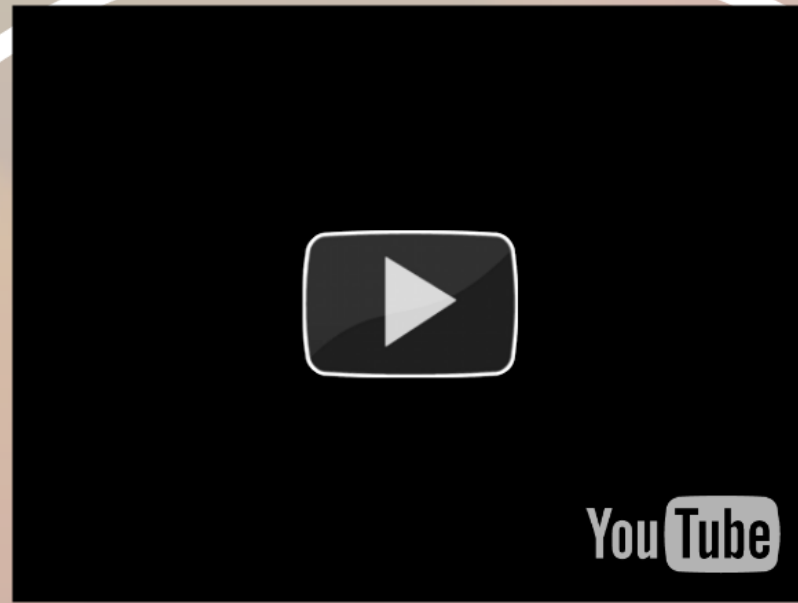

China has made substantial progress in reducing its rate of growth. At one point china had a lower CBR than the U.S. The one - child policy was adopted in the 1980. The one child policy permits a couple to have one child. The goverments prohibits marriage for men until they're 22 and women until their 20's. People receive free contraceptives, abortions, and sterilization are ways China has tried to further dicourage population growth.

Was the policy essential to the decrease in population rate?
Did China's one-child policy reduce population growth?
What would China's population have been like without the policy?
How will history judge the one-child policy?

Overall China seems to be making more progress than India. Hindus seem to play a major role in India's population growth. The thought that children are necessary make it almost impossible for the government to stop the CBR.

Overall China seems to be making more progress than India. Hindus seem to play a major role in India's population growth. The thought that children are necessary make it almost impossible for the government to stop the CBR.